

Triple Tree Aerodrome

Base to Final Volunteer Program

Are you interested in volunteering for one of our core events like Joe Nall Week or the Triple Tree Fly-In? Each event is unique and has limitless volunteer opportunities waiting for you!

In aviation, the “base to final” turn means you’re getting ready to land. The culmination of the flight comes down to these final moments. Your support is needed in these critical moments to make our events a success!

We need your skills to help before all our guests arrive from around the world! Are you a skilled tradesperson? If so, we need your help! In return for the benefits listed below, you are asked to show up at least two weeks before the event and help complete various projects we need done.

Here is a list of potential projects:

- Painting and pressure washing the inside and outside of our buildings
- Building improvements (new siding, bird mitigation, and more)

We will provide the materials. You provide the manpower and knowledge.

Benefits:

- Access to all the amenities at Triple Tree during your stay.
- Free access to premium or dry camping during your volunteer time. If using a premium site, you will need to relocate before the arrival of the premium campers.
- The ability to pick out your campsite BEFORE the horn sounds. You will still need to wait on putting up your flightline tent until AFTER the horn sounds.
- Lunch provided at daily volunteer meetings (Monday-Friday)
- Triple Tree Aerodrome-Base to Final volunteer shirt
- Opportunities to ride in Triple Tree general aviation aircraft.

Plus, the opportunity to meet interesting people from all over the world, share stories on the veranda, physical labor that enhances sleep and be part of the great events hosted at the TTA.

If you would like to be part of our “Base to Final” team, please email info@tta.aero, and we would love to learn more about you and how we can work together!
